

By Ram Samudrala of the University of Washington
Description of Songs:

My program takes a protein structure and looks at the sequence and structures and calculates distances between the as well as the energies between them based on the residue identity to create notes, chords, drum beats and guitar solos that are all played together. This particular track is called Design from the album Proteomusic: Twisted Music Inspired by Genomes and Proteomes by TWISTED HELICES.